A 30-Foot Monster.

Tuesday morning last the Examiner ablished a statement made by George Nay, of Needles, in relation to a large reptile that had been seen in the vicinreptile that had been seen in the vicinity of Daggett. According to Mr. Nay, E. W. Spear had discovered a peculiar trail, and, following it, came upon a gigantic creature, unlike anything he had ever had the pleasure of meeting. He described it as thirty feet long and thoroughly unprepossessing. Spear withdrew without formality and told his story, only to be laughed at. Later, Harry Brown saw the monster, and Mr. Brown scratched the desert sands quite in retreat. At the time Mr. Nay left Daggett a party was being or-ganized to hunt this strange denizen of the valley. Now appears Oscar W. Clark, scientist, with a weird tale and word painting of the animal.

"The announcement of the experiences of Messrs, Spear and Brown rather anticipated me," said Mr. Clark yes-terday. "I had a fine opportunity of seeing this strange denizen of that mysterious land known as Death Valley Desert, and I desire to say that this animal is the most wonderful living proof of the exact authenticity of the researches made by savants into the field of paleontological study.

"This animal is really the only living link between prehistoric times and the present. It is virtually a marvel of the ages, the eighth wonder of the world, a marvelous illustration of the profound economy of nature. It was six weeks ago that I had the pleusure of seeing this remarkable animal. I was some 30 miles distant from Daggett, and stopped at 6 o'clock in the evening to rest, having made some valuable additions to my collection of fossil remains.

"Happening to glance to the south-west through the haze peculiar to the desert I saw a strange body moving along about one mile away. I went to-ward it and was soon both elated and horrified by seeing an animal fully 30 feet long that differed from any of the known forms of the present epoch. It was an immense monster, walking part of the time on its hind feet and at times dragging itself through the sand and leaving tracks of a three-toed foot and a peculiar scratchy configuration in the sand whenever it changed its form of ocomotion and dragged itself.

"The forelimbs of the animal were extremely short and it occasionally Filling with silver, sped the nearest shrub and devoured The thumb of the three-pronged fore foot was evidently a strong conical spine that would be a dangerous wea-pon of attack. Whenever the animal stood upright it was fully 14 feet high.

The head was as large as a goodsized cask, and was shaped somewhat like a horse, while the body was as large as that of an elephant, with a tail extending from the hind quarters something like that of an alligator. "When I saw it the strange animal was on the edge of a great sink-hole, of alkaline water—a sink-hole, by the way, that my guides told me was a bot-tomless pit, and evidently a remnant of the days when Death Valley was in inland sea. I approached within 300 yards of the monster, crawling cautiousyards of the monster, crawling cautiously over the sand, and watched it for fully half an hour. Suddenly the beast began to bellow, and the sound was of a most terrifying and blood-curdling character. Its immense eyes, fully as large as saucers, projected from the head and gleamed with a wild and furious fire, while from the enormous mouth of the monster streams of steamlike vapor were exhaled, and as they drifted toward me the effluvia was something awful.

"The animal was liver color, with bronze-like spots. The monster dragged itself to the edge of the sink-hole and lashed its tail, and finally fell off into a quiescent condition. I left the scene and attempted to secure the assistance of my guides in an effort to capture the

of my guides in an effort to capture the monster, but they were absolutely ter-rified and refused to do anything. "From what I saw of the animal I am perfectly satisfied that it is one of the species of the Iguanodon bennis-santensis, of the European Jurassic, an santensis, of the European Jurassic, an animal presenting many points of structure in common with the iguana of today. In fact, that is the report that I have sent in, and knowing full well the geological environments of the Pacific slope and the very remarkable and people and the very remarkabl culiar conditions regarding the Death Valley section, I am satisfied that my deductions are correct and that there to-day living in the desert of Death Valley one of the most remarkable animals now on the face of the globenone other than one of the monsters of the prehistoric epoch, a wonder of the centuries."—San Francisco Examiner.
